The defendants, the chair and the members of the Alaska Public Offices Commission in their official capacities, request a 10-day extension of time to respond to the complaint. The plaintiffs completed service on April 15, 2022. Accordingly, a responsive pleading is due on May 6, 2022. The defendants request an extension until May 16, 2022—the same day their opposition to the plaintiffs’ motion for preliminary injunction is due—to file a responsive pleading.¹ The plaintiffs and the intervenor-defendant do not oppose this request.

DATED: May 6, 2022.

¹ In their motion to set a briefing schedule, the plaintiffs mistakenly indicated that oppositions to the motion for preliminary injunction would be due on May 15, 2022, which the Court then adopted in its order. May 15 is on a Sunday and the defendants therefore clarify that any opposition will be due on May 16, the day the parties actually intended.
